Krokidas & Bluestein is proud to announce the promotion of Jason Curtin to Partner. Jason focuses his practice on the litigation and resolution of business and real estate disputes.

“A fearless advocate for his clients, Jason Curtin is already one of Greater Boston’s most highly regarded litigators. We’re proud to welcome him as a Krokidas & Bluestein partner,” said Vincent Pisegna, Krokidas & Bluestein Co-Managing Partner. “Jason has long been a connector—someone who builds strong relationships with clients, with all the members of his team, and in the community organizations where he volunteers.”

Jason has represented nonprofit and for-profit entities in a variety of disputes in both federal and state courts, including disputes in the areas of contracts, unfair trade practices, land use, commercial property management and development, and healthcare. His litigation practice also includes employment matters, handling claims relating to noncompetition agreements, the Wage Act, wrongful termination, and discrimination.

Jason has significant experience managing e-discovery, having worked on several large e-discovery projects in private litigation. Jason is admitted to practice in Massachusetts. His jury trial experience includes both federal and state courts.

Jason has been named a Massachusetts Super Lawyer “Rising Star” in Litigation multiple times since 2015 by Thomson Reuters and Boston Magazine. He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Illinois and his law degree from the University of Virginia School of Law.

On a pro bono basis, Jason has represented victims of domestic violence through a partnership with the Middlesex District Attorney's Office. He is also a member of the fundraising leadership team at Greater Boston Legal Services.
